

“Athletic Wisdom for Student”

book overview

As a student and an athlete, you know how to conduct yourself on the field, score big against all odds in the last minute of the game and savor the praise of your parents and friends. Your passion of becoming a college athlete, and going on to the pros seems to be taking shape, but are you aware of the stats? Have you thought about the sacrifice it will take to stand out? Are you absolutely sure that you are so in love with the sport you are playing that you want it to define your adult life? Do you have the attitude to achieve your success?

As a football player for twenty-five years, from junior high school, to college at the University of Notre Dame, and up through the NFL’s Buffalo Bills, Los Angeles Rams, and Los Angeles Raiders, Gregory Leon Bell knows something about sports. He knows how to capture the attention of coaches and recruiters, how to earn a scholarship, how to select the right college and navigate the NCAA rules, and how to strengthen the skill set needed to elevate your game to the demands of the college arena. Bell also considers himself a pro at making the most out of life, despite coming from the inner city of Columbus, Ohio, and being a minority in more environments than you may ever have to enter in your own life.

Greg has spent as much time being a passionate mentor as he spent carrying a ball on the field. In Athletic Wisdom for Students, he provides youths with the road map to becoming a “first rounder,” such as treating every decision as an opportunity, striving for greatness, dreaming big, accomplishing goals, developing leadership qualities, networking for your life, and becoming financially savvy upon first paycheck.

Through “Athletic Wisdom for Students,” all students and parents will receive the PASS that Greg is throwing. Once received they will have the road map to navigating today’s students journey.
